

EVANGELICAL SEMINARY OF PUERTO RICO ADMISSIONS POLICY

Applications for admission will be considered for the months of August and January.

The Seminar, as a private institution, at all times reserves the right to admit to people who consider qualified for studies at the institution. The fulfillment of eligibility criteria published in this catalog and any other publication is no guarantee that admission is granted to an interested in studying in the seminary person.

In addition, admission or readmission to the Seminary is valid only for the corresponding academic period. The obligation of SEPR with your students is exclusively for the academic period in which the person is enrolled and satisfied all fees.

PREREQUISITES

1. Orientation Day - At the beginning of each semester, before classes will be offered to people newly hired an orientation program whose attendance is mandatory. For the same a nominal fee (see Chart Policy Costs and Fees p. 95) will be charged.
2. Research Techniques - The Seminar offers a course in research studies in theology and Bible at the beginning of each semester. Each student must take this course during the first year of their studies. It is designed to facilitate studies and monographs performing at the Seminary and has the value of a credit.
